MEMORANDUM FOR: Assistant Director for Current Intelligence

SUBJECT: Office of Current Intelligence Support of the Ad Hoc Requirements Committee (ARC)

1. In earlier memoranda I have reported to you on the excellent performance of the representatives of your Office on the ARC, of which I am the Chairman.

2. The departure of [redacted] prompts me to write this note to pay particular respect to the imaginative and thoroughgoing efforts not only of [redacted] but also those unnamed associates in OCI who give him assistance. I have felt that in many cases OCI has worked informally with the other agencies in sorting out emerging problems where possibly T-materials could aid in solution. The other agencies have, it is my observation, welcomed these efforts, and I think we have been in better shape in doing our job because of it.

3. As you know, I am not in the line of command of any of the participants in the ARC and, therefore, not in a position to place demands on them. I would be less than gracious, therefore, if I did not allude to the numerous occasions where suggestions or requests that I have placed on OCI have met with uniform thoughtful and prompt response.

4. I welcome OCI's initiative in these matters and trust that we can continue to work this way in the future.
